

Static vs Dynamic Dispatch

Dispatch: The process of invoking a method call

Static Dispatch: When the method is decided at compile time. Over loaded methods are statically bound, along with private, static and final methods.

Dynamic Dispatch: When the method is decided at runtime. The mechanism Java uses to implement run-time polymorphism. Overridden methods are dynamically bound

